FRANCE NOT TO OPPOSE RETURN OF GREEK KING

Will Take No Military Action But Calls Attention to Economic Consequences Which Would Follow

RETURN OF CONSTANTINE REGARDED AS INEVITABLE

French and British Premiers Plan Conference on Action to be Taken

PARIS.—"France and Great Britain," the Petit Parisien will say Tuesday, "will refuse to recognize Constantine if he reascends the throne of Greece," and adds: "The friends of our enemies are not our friends."

PARIS, Nov. 22.—The French government will not oppose by physical force the return of former King Constantine to the Greek throne, which the foreign office now regards inevitable, the Associated Press was informed Monday.

It was stated Premier Leygues will advocate at his meeting with Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, that a joint note be sent to the Greek people pointing out strongly the consequences of Constantine's restoraton, prominent among which would be the withdrawal of all financial and economic support of Greece.

The foreign office is convinced the plebiscite to be held on the question of Constantine's return will overwhelmingly favor the proposition and this has caused a change in the French attitude. The plebiscite is set for next Sunday.

The meeting between Premiers Leygues and Lloyd George probably will be held Thursday or Friday.

Nation Now United

ATHENS.— By The Associated Press.—Members of the new Greek cabinet are working overtime to establish the new regime and to reinstate thousands of functionaries and military officers removed by former Premier Venizelos.

Apparently the new ministry is attempting to pursue a policy of moderation toward followers of the former premier. An indication of this sentiment may be found in the retention of Stefanias, as governor of Smyrna, while M. Politis has been asked to continue his work as foreign minister.

"Please call the attention of Americans to the fact that the nation is now united," said Demetrius Gounaris to The Associated Press Monday. "This is shown by the joy over the nation's deliverance during the past few days. We are no longer trying to assassinate others, as M. Venizelos predicted, because of his non-election."

"Greece will continue her role of civilization in the Orient," he continued. "I do not believe the allies will revise the Turkish treaty. So far as we are concerned, we were given Thrace and Syrna not because of Venizelos. We wish to live at peace with all nations, and we trust our Turkish relations will not throw us in contact with the Russian bolshevik.

Papoulas Heads Army

ATHENS, Nov. 21.—Gen Papoulas has been named by the Green government as successor to General Paraskevopoulos, commander of Greek forces on the Smyrna front.

Lord Granville, British representative here, accompanied by George Rhallis, the new Greek premier, Monday went on board the battleship Iron Duke, flagship of the British squadron which is anchored off Piraeus.

LOOK TO U. S. TO AID ARMENIA

MRS. BIESEN BEGS BEIER TO REMAIN TRUE TO HER AS HE LEAVES FOR PRISON

PROBABLY one of the most pathetic love scenes ever enacted in the La Crosse county jail was the parting of Mrs. Helen Biesen and John G. Beier.

Within a few minutes after he had confessed in circuit court that he had murdered Nick Biesen, Brinkman's Ridge farmer, and had been sentenced to life imprisonment, Beier was on his way back to jail, there to await the time of departure for the prison at Waupun. Reaching the floor where he and Mrs. Biesen had been confined, Sheriff Lund granted Beier's plea that he see Mrs. Biesen for the last time.

Surprised to See Beier

Beier was taken into the room where Mrs. Biesen was awaiting the news from the court room. She seemed surprised to see Beier. For several seconds they just stared at each other. Then Mrs. Biesen spoke.

"John, will you be true to me?" she asked in quavering tones.

"I will be true to you, Helen, so help me God," answered Beier in a solemn voice.

"John, I want you to be true to me all the time. Maybe you will be out of prison in a few years. I will always be true to you no matter what happens to me," said Mrs. Biesen.

Gaze at Each Other

Then words seemed to fail them. They stood face to face and simply gazed into each other's eyes. Sheriff Lund broke the silence by saying:

"Well, I suppose it is all right for you to kiss each other for the last time."

It was the cue both seemed to be waiting for. They rushed into each other's arms, each clasping the other tightly for several moments. When the sheriff told them it was time for Beier to return to his cell, Mrs. Biesen seized Beier's hand and begged them not to take him from her. As her lover left the room Mrs. Biesen tottered toward a chair and burst into tears and sobs that shook her body.

Several hours later that evening, Friday, Beier was on his way to Waupun prison. Mrs. Biesen will be arraigned in circuit court some time this week on statutory charges.

STRANGER PICKED UP SATURDAY NIGHT BY LOCAL POLICE

Gustave Rangul Held at Central Station Pending Sanity Examination

A stranger giving his name as Gustave Rangul, after being suspected as mentally deficient, was picked up at the new Dairy lunch about twelve o'clock Saturday night by officers Rick and Thompson.

Although apparently in a natural state of mind while sitting at a table with his midnight lunch before him, his peculiar conversation with the officers drew the attention of the numerous frequenters of the lunch house who had dropped in following the closing strains of Home Sweet Home at the Yeomen hall. Rangul was in possession of several note books and was in the act of doing some figuring when he was approached by the uniformed men. In spite of the officers' request that he finish eating his lunch, Rangul paid no attention to the food but proceeded to explain some project of his own from the figures in his note book.

When it became plain that he evidently did not intend to partake further of his lunch Rangul was escorted by the two men to the police station where he is being held at the present time.

On being questioned as to his residence by Captain Dugan, of the police force today, Rangul declared that he lived in Chicago. He had given his home as Elgin, Illinois, previously. He declared that he was a blacksmith by trade, which further did not coincide with his first statement to the police when he had said he was a laborer. Rangul further expressed his desire to "get out" as he had engaged six jobs of putting on storm windows in the city. He said he would get paid six dollars a day.

No action has been taken on the case as yet, but is being held pending an examination.

DEALERS' ATTORNEYS CLAIM U. S. CANNOT LIMIT SALE OF MALT

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Kramer and Bettman, Cincinnati attorneys, counsel for malt and hop dealers in Ohio, in a communication received by local dealers Monday assert: "There is no ruling either by the prohibition enforcement department, issued or in contemplation, that limits sale of malt extract, hops, etc., to bakers and confectioners."

The lawyers were sent to Washington by a Cincinnati concern. Their conclusion, they said in the letter, was reached after "full conferences with officers of the prohibition enforcement office."

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND POLAND ARE RESUMED

RIGA.—The Russo-Polish peace negotiations were resumed Monday. M. Joffe, head of the soviet delegation, notified the Polish peace commissioner, M. Dombiski, that a telegram has been received from Moscow confirming the withdrawal of the Polish troops to the Polish state frontier.

M. Dombiski Sunday declared the withdrawal had been effected, but M. Joffe awaited word from Moscow before resuming negotiations with the Poles.

Body of E. V. White Who Built Flour Mill in City, Laid at Rest in Oak Grove

Prominent in business circles in La Crosse nearly a half century ago, the body of E. V. White, who built the White-Freeman flour mill, now known as the Listman mill, in 1871, was interred beside that of his wife in Oak Grove cemetery, Saturday.

Mr. White was born April 21, 1828, in Barnston, Canada. He came to La Crosse in 1871 and built the White-Freeman mill. He had other flour mills at Hokah, Lanesboro and Medford.

Mr. White built the house at the northwest corner of Tenth and Cass streets which later was the home of the late G. R. Montague. In 1878 he moved to Minneapolis, where he built a big mill. He was the first president of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce.

He resided later in Leavenworth, Kan., and Gladstone, Mich., where he died April 14, 1920.

The body was brought to La Crosse Saturday by Charles V. and Clara M. White, son and daughter, to be interred in the family lot here. Rev. C. C. Rowlison conducted the funeral service.

Mr. White was a Mason and member of the Congregational church.

FIUME, Nov. 21.—By The Associated Press.—Gabriele D'Annunzio, insurgent commander at Fiume, declared Monday he was unalterably opposed to accepting the treaty of Rapallo, settling the Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, and that he would continue fighting until the just claims of Italy were met.

CLAIM SENATE ONCE FAVORED SENDING HELP

Call Attention to Resolution Pledging U. S. Assistance Introduced by Senator Harding

SITUATION CALLS FOR QUICK ACTION DECLARES FRENCHMAN

Pity Will No Longer Suffice Viviani Tells the League Assembly

GENEVA.—By The Associated Press.—A resolution presented by M. Viviani, inviting the council of the league of nations to confer with the various powers with the view of constituting a force sufficient to put an end to hostilities in Armenia, which, was joined to Lord Robert Cecil's resolution along the same lines, was adopted by the assembly of the league Monday afternoon.

GENEVA.—By The Associated Press.—The possibility of American aid for the Armenians was touched upon in debate Monday by the assembly of the league of nations on resolutions demanding intervention by the league in Armenia.

Supporting Lord Robert Cecil's demand that the assembly appoint a committee to examine into means for ending the hostilities between the Turkish nationalists and the Armenians, M. Spalekjovitch, of the Serbian delegation, recalled that the United States at one time had approved the use of the American fleet to succor the Armenians. It was recalled here, in this connection, that Senator Harding was the senator who reported the resolution.

(A resolution requesting the president to send marines to Baium was adopted by the senate May 12 last. It was offered by Senator Harding on behalf of the foreign relations committee.)

Suggests U. S. Mandate

A. J. Balfour of Great Britain, speaking on the resolution, said that if the United States had been willing to take the mandate for Armenia, she had the men, money and spirit to make her an ideal mandatory. The league has been unable to accomplish anything with regard to the Armenian situation, Mr. Balfour admitted, because the condition of Armenia, he argued, was not such as the league was organized to deal with.

Mr. Balfour said an appeal must be sent to the forty-one states of the league for a united effort to save Armenia.

Pity Not Enough

Rene Viviani of France, following Mr. Balfour, said all were agreed that compassion would not longer suffice for Armenia.

"It is not the fault of France if the league is disarmed before the situation in Armenia is righted," said M. Viviani. Virtually the entire assembly applauded the statement. It was noted, however, that the British delegation did not applaud.

"If the conference had listened to France," continued M. Viviani, "we would have had an international staff and an international force to deal with this situation."

M. Viviani presented a resolution inviting the council of the league to consult the powers with a view to the constitution of a force sufficient to put an end to the hostilities in Armenia.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen of Norway estimated that sixty thousand men would be a force sufficient to deal with the situation. He thought that, if the assembly appealed to the whole world, the United States, although it had refused the mandate, would do its share.

Delegate Jonesen of Rumania supported M. Viviani's proposition, and also thought the United States might be counted upon for help.

Favor Intervention

The debate gave the impression of everyone thinking of a resort to intervention and yet not wishing to call it by that name. C. J. Doherty of Canada, put it as "an exceptional remedy for an exceptional situation." At the close of the debate, however, Lord Robert Cecil said he would favor armed intervention or any other practical

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE FUNERAL OF REVEREND WITHERBEE

Well Known Pastor in Western Wisconsin Does Much Good in His Life

FUNERAL IS HELD ON SUNDAY AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Body Taken to Hazel Green, Wisconsin, for Interment

IMPRESSIVE services, fitting the life and character of the Reverend Hiram J. Witherbee were held at the First Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

While the body was being brought into the church, Professor F. W. Rawstron played the Funeral March by Chopin. The male quartet of the church sang "Majestic Sweetness Sits Enthroned upon the Savior's Brow," after which prayer was offered by Rev. J. H. Benson of the Caledonia Street Methodist church. The scripture was read by the Rev. E. H. Clark of the West Avenue Methodist church, and "I know My Heavenly Father Knows" was sung by F. J. Soule. The address was given by Rev. A. V. Ingham, district superintendent of La Crosse, who took as his text, "He was a good man." The benediction was by Rev. Mr. Barrus, district superintendent of Madison.

No more fitting text could have been chosen for the occasion for, from early manhood, Mr. Witherbee has given his life in the service of the church. His service was always of the most intimate sort, for he was one of the few men who have the faculty of touching souls intimately without giving offense. Stern and right as were his principles, he was not narrow, and especially among the young for whom he had the greatest sympathy, was his most successful work accomplished. On the street, in the home, on the train, wherever he might be, his cheering smile and acquaintances made his influence constant and powerful for good, and the upbuilding of his Master's kingdom.

Following the address the quartet, consisting of Messrs. Soule, Marshall, Otten and Myers sang "Lead Kindly Light," by Dudley Buck.

The number and beauty of the floral offerings gave silent tribute to the love of the host of friends who mourn his loss.

Born in Hazel Green

Hiram J. Witherbee was born in Hazel Green, Wisconsin, June 1, 1847. His father was one of the early settlers in that village. His mother, who was very active in church work, died when he was three years of age.

Growing to manhood he became a farmer, and followed that occupation for fifteen years. He was an ardent worker in the church during that time, never, except on account of illness, missing a prayer meeting or a class meeting, frequently walking the distance when his horses were tired after the day's work.

It was in the winter of 1886-7 that he was assocated in a revival meeting with James M. Phelps and was impressed at this time that his duty was to enter the ministry. In the autumn of 1887 he applied for admission to the West Wisconsin conference and was assigned to his first charge at Fennimore. Later he served successively at Cassville, De Soto, Galesville, Melrose, Springville, Bloomington, Belmont, South Wayne and Hazel Green. During the time he served the last three charges he was not in good health and on this account in the fall of 1913 he asked to be placed on the list of superannuated preachers.

Since that time he has made his home in La Crosse and while here, for a period of a year and a half, he supplied the charge at Rockland and Big Creek.

He was in the active ministry for twenty-six years and had the satisfaction of leaving each charge in better condition than he found it. His ministry was of the evangelistic type and his charges usually experienced revivals. He was married to Julia Haney on October 25, 1870, and lived to see the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding, which occurred last October. He and Mrs. Witherbee had a family of four children: Hattie A., who died at Melrose at the age of 27; Hiram S., who is pastor of the Methodist church at West Allis, Wisconsin; Oliver D., in business in Galesville, and Elizabeth H., a teacher in the public schools of La Crosse.

Rev. Mr. Witherbee suffered ill health last winter, but on October 18 he became confined to his bed from which he was unable to rise. That he might have the best of care he was removed to a local hospital. He realized that the end was near but he looked upon death without the least dread. He was conscious and cheerful up to the last. He suffered constant pain and found relief only when the soul passed out of his body about five o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The body was taken to his birthplace, Hazel Green, for burial. The pall bearers were: Bert Baker, A. L. Marshall, Arthur A. Dusty, George Clarke, James A. Trane and Bert Brown.

Those present from out of the city for the funeral were:

Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Witherbee and two children from West Allis; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Witherbee and children; Mr. Harry Cabanis of Kenosha; Mr. and Mrs. Holmberd of Galesville.

SUNDAY OUTBREAK IN DUBLIN RESULTS IN DEATH OF TWENTY-SIX

Shooting of Fourteen Miltary Officers Precipitates Rioting at Football Game in Which 12 More are Killed and 70 Wounded; Reprisals not Attempted and the City Quiets Down

LONDON.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, declared in the house of commons Monday that plans of "paid assassins," discovered recently, included destruction of life and property in England as well as in Ireland.

DUBLIN.—(By the Associated Press.)—Twenty-six persons are dead and seventy others are in hospitals as a result of Sunday's orgy of assassinations and the wholesale shooting in Croke Park, where soldiers fired on the crowd which had gathered to witness a football game between the Dublin and Tipperary teams.

Dublin's apprehension that reprisals would follow Sunday night proved unfounded, and it is believed that government reports of three or four killings in the city after midnight were due to their confusion with outrages near Dublin.

Aside from military activities and searchings, including Mansion House, armored cars passing through the streets and the fact that all thoroughfares, leading out of the city were closely watched, Dublin and its vicinity were quieter it appeared that Sunday's outbreak, following the lines of other Irish disturbances, was not being sustained.

The shooting in Croke Park was described by some newspapers as another Amritsar, and is defended by the authorities on the ground they had reason to believe that the men from the provinces had participated in Sunday's murders and were present at the football match. The design of the military, it was said, was to prevent their exit and search each individual as he passed out through the turnstiles.

The plan failed because of the general stampede, people scaling the walls of the park and many going into the houses across the road, from which they were dragged by the military. It is possible that in resisting search and arrest some shots were fired at the military in the park, but no general firing preceded the discharge of volleys by the military.

The impression prevailing Sunday night that the park shooting was a reprisal was controverted by an official statement that it was an attempt to round up the morning murderers.

No trains were running and no motoring was allowed in the belief that the men wanted were still in the city and that their capture might be effected by an exhaustive search.

Dublin a Battle Ground

LONDON.—Murder stalked through the streets of Dublin Sunday and at nightfall meagre reports indicated that at least twenty-five persons had been killed and upwards of 100 more or less seriously wounded. The day's disorders began with the apparently deliberate shooting of fourteen men, who for the most part were military officers. During the afternoon Irish constabulary or "Black and Tans," raided Croke Park, where a football game was in progress, and in the melee which resulted at least ten persons were killed.

Communication with Ireland was seemingly interrupted Sunday evening, but latest advices declared fires had broken out in that city. Shooting again began in the streets just before midnight and it was asserted a number of persons had been killed.

Sunday's murderous outbreak in Dublin produced in London a sensation comparable to that which followed the Easter rebellion of 1916. Recent declarations by members of the British ministery, to the effect that their policy was succeeding, that outrages were decreasing in number and that the authority of the law was being re-established, had been hopefully welcomed by the general public. The public recalled with astonishment such phrases as were uttered a fortnight ago by Premier Lloyd George, who said:

"Unless I am mistaken, we have murder by the throat."

Conspiracy Broken?

Military authorities in Dublin are said to hold the view that the murder of the fourteen army officers will prove the final outburst of a nearly broken conspiracy—the last desperate blow of the fugitives who are known to have flocked to Dublin to escape the severity of the measures employed in the provinces to suppress Sinn Feinism.

There is no lack, however, of scornful inferences, and the fact that these fugitives have been able to enjoy freedom from arrest since having arrived in Dublin and could have become acquainted with the residences and habits of their victims, who, it is stated, were securing evidence to be submitted before the court martial which will try recently arrested Sinn Feiners, is regarded as furnishing significant ground for doubting the confidence supposedly held by officials. Today's newspapers condemn with severity the system followed in Ireland. Some demand sternest measures of repression and hint at the desirability of imposing martial law in Ireland.

Blame the Government

Those journals which have adopted a strong stand against reprisals and hold the government largely responsible for these attacks by the uniformed forces, take occasion to renew their insistance that reprisals must be stopped. The London Times for instance, while vehemently denouncing the murders of the officers, expresses belief that the strength of the Irish executive would be ten times

NEW ENGLAND ROADS FACING BANKRUPTCY COMMISSION IS TOLD

Will be Driven Into Receiverships if Financial Relief is Not Afforded

WASHINGTON.— Unless immediate financial relief is afforded the New England railroads, "all or most of them will very shortly be driven into receiverships, the interstate commerce commission was told Monday by Charles F. Choate, Jr., and Wilbur La Roe, Jr., counsel for the lines.

The commission was told that the actual returns to the roads in September and the estimated returns for October under the increased rates granted under the transportation act confirmed that the income received by the roads was not sufficient to meet their requirements.

Counsel for the roads said that for the eight months ending last August 31 the actual deficit in the net railway operating income of the roads, excluding the Boston and Albany, a part of the New York Central system, was $23,674,676, and that estimates for next year showed a net railway operating income of about $10,000,000 or $40,000,000 less than the net railways operating income required by the transportation act to show six per cent on the fair value of the property.

It was stated that this would be $22,000,000 less than the amount required to meet fixed charges. The book cost of the lines was placed at more than $838,247,769 and it was pointed out that an annual return of six per cent on this amount would be $50,296,485.

PROFITEERING IN GOVERNMENT STORES CHARGED IN REPORT

Speculators Buying Stores from One Department and Selling them to Another

U. S. ARMY INSPECTOR ASKS ACTION TO CURB THE EVIL

Recommends Changes to Improve Army Conditions

WASHINGTON.—Immediate revision of the present method of disposing of surplus government stores to prevent speculators from buying federal property from one department and re-selling to another branch of the government at higher figure is recommended in the annual report of Major General J. L. Chamberlain, inspector general of the army, to secretary of war, made public Monday. The necessity for the proposed action is indicated by a recent investigation that disclosed that one department of the government sold surplus cement for $1.00 per ton to a civilian who immediately re-sold the same cement to a branch of the war department for $6.00 a ton, the report states.

Gen. Chamberlain said that while the practice of hazing at West Point has not been entirely eliminated, considerable progress has been made to that end.

Criticism of the hospital facilities at Camp Benning, Georgia, is voiced in the report, the equipment there being characterized as "entirely inadequate."

Prompt measures to check abuse of the army uniform are recommended, the report declaring that "civilian authorities have not always co-operated to stop such abuse."

Other recommendations of the inspector general include:

More care with respect to promises made recruits, particularly with regard to the army's educational courses, so all pre-enlistment promises may be fully complied with.

Abandonment of civilian instructors at army schools.

Renewal of the clothing allowance system for enlisted men, a change in the type of collar on the service coat and more care in seeing that each recruit has one new, well-fitting uniform.

Revision of the post exchange system.

Replacement of temporary buildings with permanent structures at all permanent camps.

Consolidation of air service units as far as possible and replacement of civilian employes in this branch with enlisted personnel.

Revision of the property accountability system revived.

Considerable progress is being made in building up army morale after the depression incident of demobilization of the emergency forces, the report says, and discipline has greatly improved due to eradication of unsatisfactory conditions.

"BUDDIES" COMING

On Tuesday, Nov. 30th, the Selwyns production of "Buddies" comes here direct from a twelve month engagement in the Selwyn theater, New York. It's engagement will be at the La Crosse theater soon.

The fragrance of the romance of "Buddies" and the charm of its interpolating music gripped the heart of New York all last season as a musical production seldom does. From the rise of the first curtain Julie Benoit, the sweet maid of Britanny, has the sympathy of every audience in the trials she endures through the exeruciating shyness of "Babe" one of the American "Buddies" billeted in her peasant home. In "Please Learn to Love," one of the lilting melodies which R. C. Hilliam has woven into the fabric of George V. Hobart's romance, Julie demands of "Babe" "Why Are You so Scared of Me?" but she never finds an answer because the diffidence of the American "Buddy" is an inherent quality which even his love cannot surmount until ultimately he is forced into its declaration.

Running parallel with the dominant love-story of "Julie" and "Babe" is a minor theme no less appealing in the romance of "Sonny," another of the "Buddies," and little "Miss Brooklyn." And through the double story runs the golden thread of Mr. Hilliam's music, and the humor and pathos which attend the daily doings of the American soldiers as they await their return, after the armistice to American shores.

MAIL FOR TOMAH IS LIMITED; NO TRAINS IN SEVENTEEN HOURS

Body of Private Arnold Summerfield Who Died in France Brought Home for Burial

TOMAH—Mail and passenger service for Tomah is so badly curtailed by the recent orders regarding the stopping of trains at this station, that general dissatisfaction is felt in this city and vicinity.

According to the new schedule, no trains from the east stop here, from four-thirty in the afternoon until nine-thirty the following morning, a matter of seventeen hours. Consequently Tomah has passed into the "afternoon mail" class of cities, as the morning mail from the east arrives too late for delivery before noon, and nearly all business mail is from the east.

It is said that the city postoffice opens at six a. m. and clerks sit around cooling their heels until nine-thirty with nothing to do.

Mail Trains Still Whistle

However, the locomotives of the mail trains are still permitted to whistle as they whirl through Tomah, cheering the citizens of the city with this proof of the fact that Tomah is still on the map.

The fact that no night passenger trains from the east stop here, greatly inconveniences travellers as only one of two courses is open to them, Either they must travel by day or stay over night at some point east of Tomah, and come to the city on the fast mail in the morning Teachers going to their homes for the Thanksgiving vacation are greatly puzzled as to their return, unless a good part of the brief recess is spent on the road.

Soldier's Body Arrives

The body of Private Arnold E. Summerfield, who died in the world war, arrived in Tomah from overseas on Saturday morning. A military escort, a corporal in the United States regular army, accompanied the body to this city.

On Monday afternoon funeral services were held from the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Summerfield ,and were conducted by the Tomah post of the American Legion. The Rev. Mr. Baganz of Ridgeville gave the funeral address and an honorary escort of old friends of the dead soldier accompanied the body to its final resting place in Oak Grove cemetery. A firing squad from the Separate company, W. N. G., fired a salute at the grave and a bugler sounded taps.

Arnold E. Summerfield enlisted July 9, 1918, and was sent to France the following September. He was in active service with a machine gun company, contracted pneumonia and died in a French hospital January 9, 1919, exactly six months after his enlistment.

"GIRLS FROM THE FOLLIES"

There is said to be a superabundance of "dash" and "go" to the performance of Strouse and Franklyn's "Girls From the Follies" that makes it one of the most acceptable and entertaining organizations on the American circuit. Admirers of high class musical comedy shows will have an opportunity of judging for themselves the truth of this assertion when this combination of excellence will cavort on the stage of the La Crosse theater, Saturday night, Nov. 27th.

It is generally conceded that there are few better exponents of rollicking Hebrew fun than Fred Binder, who "tops" the bill in the comedy line. Then the are Lew Howard, Billy Kelly, Billy Walsh, Bill Trueheart and Theadore Murphy, all experienced actors of the approved comedy type.

The female contingent, who may be relied upon to qualify as entertainers of sterling worth include Babe De Palmer, Mable White, Lucia Arnold, Pauline Graw and Mlle Faustina, a graceful dancer who infuses a "splash of sensationalism in her work that lifts her offering out of the time honored rut.

The chorus, always a prime factor in Strouse and Franklyn's productions, is composed of youthful girls, fair of face and well moulded limbs, nicely costumed and accomplished to a marked degree in singing, dancing, posing and everything else that should go with a full fledged queen of the merry chorus.

There are a score of catchy numbers and ensembles in the burlesque which bears the title of "Here and There." It is presented in seven scenes that are said to be about the final word in the scene painters' art.

Wounded Soldiers At State University Form Society; Plan National Association

MADISON, Wis.—Scabbard and Blade, an organization of wounded soldiers at the University of Wisconsin, plans to extend its organization throughout the country, E. M. Burkey, its president, announced today. Present groups at Columbia university, New York, and at Northwestern university will be asked to join.

When it was found recently that a number of the wounded men had not received their checks from Washington, the others chipped in five dollars each from their weekly allotment and now have a fund of $485 from which $306 was loaned last week to take care of those who were without funds. It is now planned to raise $1,000 to be placed in reserve under M. H. Tolgo, co-ordinator, who has charge of the federal board students.

Students in Scabbard and Blade have been active since the opening of school. Although wounded, many of them without arms and legs, and all in impaired health as a result of their injuries, the men have maintained a regular social schedule and are now planning a series of athletic contests.

The wounded men at Wisconsin come from every quarter of the country though registration shows. Mississippi, Louisiana, Washington, New York, South Dakota, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Iowa are represented besides Wisconsin.

E. M. Burkey is president of Scabbard and Blade; Reno W. Pinto is co-president; Maynard Brown, secretary; Romm Koelch, treasurer, and Adrian Scolton, in charge of activities.

THE CONQUISTADOR

MEXICO will not O. K. Senator Fall's passport into the country when he starts to attend the inauguration at Mexico City. If this sounds like a deliberate affront to a member of the United States government, turn your mind back to the report of the Fall committee investigating United States-Mexican relations of a few months back. You will see that the report coolly recommended that Mexico should change her constitution because it got in the way of the grabbing of Mexican oil lands by American petroleum interests. And that wasn't Senator Fall's first offense against international decency. He has been whooping it up for some Yankee conquistador stuff below the Rio Grande for now these many years. In the row that will doubtless be started over the passport incident certainly Mexico cannot be said to have hit the first blow, nor to have acted without a certain provocation. But watch the jingoes go to it!

CRANBERRY SAUCE

IT takes more than the turkey to make the Thanksgiving dinner. And one of the necessary adjuncts that pops into the mind of the housewife when she thinks of turkey in connection with that formal celebration is the cranberry.

It is a dear little fruit. And just as American in everything as the Indian himself. Native to the swamps and bogs of Newfoundland, it ranges even so far west as Wisconsin and to the south down into the Carolinas. But wherever its source, it certainly adds zest to the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

For a long time the cranberry got little recognition. It was allowed to grow in its mossy home and at times was harvested in a haphazard way. Then, about 1810, its domestication, started. It was improved both in flavor and size, and the good qualities have been so dwelt upon, and the "berry" itself has so advertised its virtues that "eat more cranberry" campaigns have actually been launched and with no little success.

The American people now dispose of over fifty million quarts of cranberries a year, and mainly in that very short season known as "the holidays." But the cranberry is going to be an all-season crop so far as its consumption is concerned, for ways have been perfected whereby evaporated cranberries, making sauce as if fresh from the vine, have already been placed upon the market.

They will be a boon to housewives, like canned corn on the cob now is, when offered as is possible at the Thanksgiving dinner table.

HARDING WARNED

THE New Republic points out a danger awaiting Senator Harding as president, a peril into which it believes President Wilson fell hopelessly.

This publication submits that Wilson went to Europe to set up an international institution which was to be an American formulation of the fourteen points into a functioning agency. He traded the fourteen points for the American league. Europe gave America the league, and in place of the fourteen points, exacted as its compensation the spirit and the terms of secret European diplomacy.

France, says The Republic, has hastened to assure Senator Harding that it agrees with him about a new "association of nations." The secret of this move is the widening difference of opinion between France and Great Britain. British policy would affect a reconciliation with Russia and central Europe. French policy is relentless because it aims at French domination of Europe. Uncle Sam can't move in both directions. He must choose between them, or play a lone hand.

Just as it insists that Europe traded Wilson the league for the fourteen points, it expects that France will try to trade Harding the association for American support of French continental policy. And it adds that any arrangement joining our fortunes with those of France, and putting us out of joint with England, would be an "entangling alliance" beyond the most troubled dreams of Americans who have voted against all such complications.

The point of advice is that we must get in as to our counsel and judgment, and as participants in the effectuation of plans openly arrived at by these methods, but that we must not be caught upon either side of a conflict by which rival nations may wage their efforts to gain international power by means of controlling the agencies which we set up to establish international peace.

COMMON SENSE

ROGER W. BABSON has said something for business men to think about.

"Business men should note the acceptance of a sound truth on the part of an increasing number of employers, namely, that the consuming power of the public depends upon decent wage levels and steady employment. A drastic and general wage cut in all industries would mean a distinct loss in sales. This should not be lost sight of by merchants in their present reluctance to reduce mark-ups."

It is sound advice. When all is said and done, the foreign trade of the United States, enormous as it is when stated in dollars, is a drop in the bucket to the domestic market. It remains true that American merchants must find their real market for goods in the United States. This will become increasingly evident as economic readjustment proceeds and Europe becomes able to liquidate the one-sided balance of trade that has existed since the beginning of the great World War.

The home market must be the principal dependence of business men.

And what is this home market? It is the vast body of workingmen and women—hand and brain workers—whose daily toil produces the commodities which the population needs in its daily life. Roughly speaking, it may be said that ninety per cent of the population belong to workers' families. Ten per cent, perhaps, live by ownership.

It follows, of course, since everybody must have a house to live in, some kind of clothing to wear, and must eat three meals a day, that the ninety per cent who work with hand and brain (counting their families) must of necessity be the great body of consumers in any nation. If these people are steadily employed at good wages, as Babson points out, they can continue to consume at a maximum and business will be "good." If, however, drastic wage cuts and layoffs are resorted to by business men, rather than sell at a reasonable price, the consumers, with income curtailed or stopped, cannot continue to buy back the products they have produced for the owners of industry. That means "bad" business.

No nation can long remain prosperous, unless the vast body of its workers are profitably employed.

You are informed that the weather bureau's prediction of "fair" does not necessarily mean sunshine. Thus is forecasting made safe if not sane.

Harding received a great welcome despite the X in Tex.

AFTER MANY DAYS

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

The name was a rank misfit—Aspasia Gay presupposed a personality learnedly light. Instead, poor Spasia held learning in horror, and regarded real hearty mirth as a snare of the Evil One. Consequently she found existence so dull, drab and lifeless her natural sweetness fermented in its vacuum to a sour verging on bitterness. Very human, very timid, wholly wanting in conceit, apparently she was foredoomed to tragic spinsterhood—tragic because she had a warm heart withal tender, and filled with yearnings for her very own. A husband little children, a snug place to keep spotless and comfortable—such were her dumb desires—which she would have gone to the stake rather than admit. "A born old maid," said her world, unsuspecting—that is to say its kindlier half. The other half, led by Jerry Dayton sneered: "A monument to men's discrimination—what could anybody, even a blind man find in her to attract?

Jerry was wicked—spirit, tongue and temper. Hated things and people for simple sake of hating. Rich, stormily beautiful, avid of conquest and dominion, she chose to feel affronted by Spasia's meek existence. Possibly the seed of affront had been planted in childhood, when Spasia had ventured to put her small niece's picture in a local newspaper contest, where it had won first prize over several presentments of Jerry. When Jerry had cried herself into spams over the hurt to her vanity—mysteriously that night, the prize picture was defaced, nobody could tell how. But shortly afterward a Dayton footman left service to set up in business for himself. Tongues wagged discreetly, behind hand to be sure—but nobody got further than saying the Daytons would never let money stand between their little girl and anything she might want to do or have done.

Timid though she was, Spasia had texture—witness that when she was left on the small place she kept on living there, making enough through her garden chickens and dairy to live decently and keep far from debt. This in spite of feeding, clothing and housing Black Maria and her blind twins. Maria did the milking and marketing, working out in spare hours for money which, added to her modest wages, would send Bill and Jimmy through the blind school when they were bigger.

One fine day a bomb fell into this islet of content—the convalescent wraith of a very pretty girl. Still very pretty in an elfin way, with infantine curls beginning to crisp above a white brow, and faint roses to show in hollow cheeks. The sometime prize winner, grown up, had been mighty near death. She had overdone piteously after the manner of fresh youth, working by day in the art school, going to the place of Bohemia at night. Her dead father's gift of artistry law compelling upon her; then too, she resented her smug stepfather and the small brood which seemed to have crowded her out of her mother's heart. The mother had remembered Aunt Spasia in this extremity—and sent Leslie to her without the formality of asking a welcome for her.

Spasia, doubtful through a minute, in the next took the girl to her heart of hearts. It somehow warmed curiously, and the queer pain in it lulled. But habit held her dumb—she could only stroke the fairy curls as she bade Leslie good night—yet though she had long ceased praying she knelt that night crying voicelessly: "Save her, Lord, save her!"

Leslie was up very early—she had run through the dewy garden, with Dashdog at her heels, inspected the cows, and shamelessly let out broods of tiny, peeping chicks. She was so rosy and bright-eyed health seemed to have come back magically. But toward noon she fainted dead away—and next and next stayed abed, claiming to be not ill but merely lazy.

Half-way the second morning she lay alone in the cool spare chamber opening from the porch, smiling a little and sighing more. At a vigorous knock impatiently repeated, she called: "Come in! Or out! Auntie, I think, is lost."

Entered a tall young fellow, brown and wholesome, good to look upon, bringing with him the outdoor world. "Why, you are Leslie!" he cried, coming close: "And you're grown up to your picture. I fell in love with it twelve years ago, and have been waiting for you ever since."

"Indeed!" said Leslie, meaning to speak saucily, but achieving only shakiness: "Why wasn't I told of it? I might have taken more pains."

"Wasted them, you mean," the visitor retorted. "I'm John—Dr. Manton's John, they call me. I knew you had come, but didn't expect to find you in bed this time of day."

"I didn't—expect to—be." Leslie tried to explain—but somehow her voice trailed into silence. After one look John was calling frantically to his father: "Come—like lightning! Leslie may be dying."

Followed ten perilous days throughout which the older and younger Mantons haunted Aspinia's house. Shoulder to shoulder they fought for a girl's life. And close beside them, tireless, sleepless, white-faced, but never quailing, fought poor Spasia, with no thought or care for herself, for anything but saving this creature of her own blood, upon whom she poured the wealth of her hoarded love.

Love won its battle—though it was touch and go. Jerry Dayton raved—she had sprained her ankle, and after dressing it, neither of the Drs. Manton had answered calls for their presence. Young John indeed had said undiplomatically: "All you need is to behave yourself and keep still, Jerry; of course, if you drag around the foot it will keep on hurting. We simply can't spare time—father and I. We are—watching a desperate almost hopeless case—but we're going to win by the Lord's good help.

Other people were upset, but made no outcry. The Mantons practiced for the love of it, being well able not to think of money. The father said openly he was fighting for his son's happiness—John had really loved Leslie since that far-away time. She was not only beautiful but fine and delicate to the core. Even in her wildest delirium there had been nothing the whole world might not have heard and applauded. There would be no courtship until she was fully herself—strong and well as she had never been before.

Thus the good man for his son. For himself there was another story. He told it to Spasia after they had carried Leslie into the garden for the first time. She was lovelier than ever in her fragile state—yet looking from her face to the older, you saw the tie of race—lines proclaiming the oneness of blood and spirit.

"The loveliest thing God ever made," Spasia said under breath, her eyes too humid for lifting.

"Not quite," said Dr. Manton. "Because—here you stand. I've loved you twenty years—since John was a little fellow—but never dared tell you—you seemed so remote. Now that I see what a heart you own I will not let you waste it a week longer. Love Leslie all you like—but love me as well."

"I—I have loved you always," Aspasia faltered, eyes still downcast, but hidden in Dr. Manton's breast.

High prices are going, and are going to stay gone forever, if the students of the Fieser School, Columbus, Ohio, have anything to say about it.

But now that the price of the "Penny Lunch" has gone up to 2c less than 70 pupils buy it.

BOYHOOD STORIES OF FAMOUS MEN

Cardinal Manning

Crouched under a table, trembling with fear, little Henry Manning was found by his mother.

—"Oh, mother, I'm afraid. Cousin Arthur told me that God wrote down in a book every wrong thing I did. Just this morning I told you a lie when I said I had seen a big green peacock. What will God do to me?" sobbed the little boy.

"Come out from under the table, dear, and ask God to forgive your sin, and promise Him you will always speak the truth hereafter."

HOW TO PUBLISH AN AMATEUR PAPER

By WILLIAM DOWDELL,
Publicity Secretary, National Amateur Press Association

Every amateur publisher has an exchange list. On this list are the names of other amateur publishers. On mailing day the publisher sends free copies of his paper to all names on the list. The other publishers return the courtesy when their papers are out. This exchange of amateur papers is one of the big features of the "Prince of Hobbies."

The amateur publisher, before the first issue of his paper is off the press, should make up a list of amateur publishers with whom he desires to exchange. The names of all amateur publications, and their editors are printed in "The National Amateur," the bi-monthly official organ of the National Amateur Press Association.

If you are going to publish an amateur paper you should join the National Amateur Press Association before the first issue of your paper is out. To join it is necessary to send an application and the annual dues, $1, to the association's secretary. Application blanks may be obtained from the association's publicity secretary, 3661 W. 139th St., West Park, Ohio.

Publishers of amateur papers who are members of the association are eligible to compete for prizes offered each year for the best literary and editorial work.

Any boy and girl ambitious to write should not feel that Amateur Journalism is closed to him or her because of inability to publish an amateur paper.

Amateur Journalism must have its authors and its poets. There are many members of the association who do not publish, but contribute prose and poetry to papers published by other members.

Amateur journalism has papers devoted to nearly every subject. You will be surprised when you get into it to find how fascinating it is. No wonder it is the "Prince of Hobbies." "Once an Amateur—Always an Amateur."

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS SPENT IN CHRISTIAN THINKING REVIEWED

Rev. C. Rowlison Talks of Progress of Past Quarter Century in Church Work

"The past seventy-five to a hundred years have developed a more radical change in Christian thinking than any other similar period in two milleniums," said Rev. C. C. Rawlison at the First Congregational church Sunday. "The Reformation used the Bible to wrest authority from an all-dominating church, and thereby developed the influences which have made the masses of people feel that all governmental powers, as well as ecclesiastical, of right inhere in the people themselves, and not in any king or emperor.

"The final triumph of this principle came to its spectacular climax in the great world war. But the charter of the people's rights has been the open Bible, the authoritative voice of God in behalf of the free sons of God.

"The last twenty-five years of Christian thinking are specially significant, in that they have brought more or less clearly and unequivocally into consciousness the fact, that we are now in the process of creating both the church and the state of the free spirit. These are not the church and the state that deny and repudiate and revile the institutions of the past, but rather are the natural and inevitable evolution from what were vital manifestations of the spirit as the rolling centuries succeeded each other. We must not fail to appreciate what this signifies.

"What then are the definite accomplishments of twenty-five years of Christian thinking?

"1. A joyous awareness of kinship existing between all who have spiritual discernment. The boundaries between men are no longer perpendicular but horizontal. One finds his comrades upon the plane of his living, whatever external circumstances may seem to separate them.

"2. The church is seen to be essentially an educational and inspirational institution, bound by no dogmas, but seeking to embody and interpret the spirit of Christ, under whatever forms and ceremonies or ecclesiastical organization it may find itself existing.

"3. The church thus comes to be thought of as the undefined body of all true believers. Where two or three are gathered together in his name, there is the church. They may not even be gathered together, nor necessarily agree about many things, but the Church is really constituted of those who worship the Father in spirit and truth. It is an historical institution, for it really always has been thus constituted; but it also is an institution of unfolding process, clothing itself with varied forms, and using much symbolism to perpetuate its teachings. But though the form and the symbolism often claim to constitute the Church, it is quite clear that these are nothing but its tools and instruments.

"4. The same thinking makes the state a group of citizens who agree to live together upon the principles of righteousness. Yet it accepts the state as an historical institution which has its foundations in a constitution growing out of the highest experience and best thought of the past, but always open to free amendment to meet the living needs of the present.

"Thus our later Christian thinking has brought into clearer consciousness than ever before just what are the meanings of a free church and a free state, as they co-ordinate themselves in our great American Republic. The church is not free to carry on a program of autocracy and dogmatism, though such freedom is often claimed. More and more, in spite of all such claims, there is manifest the historic church of the growing soul and open vision. The state is not free to enslave any part of its citizenry, though industrialism before the Civil War claimed the right to enslave the black man, and since the Civil War has, in the name of freedom, often insteud upon enslaving all sorts and conditions of the weak and the helpless. Yet, in spite of all such practices more and more we are bringing into being in this great republic the state of the emancipated citizen, who is captain of his own soul."

The Screen

AT THE THEATERS TODAY

Rivoli—Elsie Ferguson in "Lady Rose's Daughter."

Majestic—Ethel Clayton in "A Lady in Love."

Riviera—Corinne Griffith in "Bab's Candidate."

Casino—Nazimova in "The Heart of a Child."

Bijou—Will Rogers in "Cupid the Cowpuncher."

Strand—Alma Rubens in "The World and His Wife."

RIVOLI

Elsie Ferguson plays three roles in her new picture, "Lady Rose's Daughter," which opened a three days' run at the Rivoli theater last evening. The story is of the high-bred type in which Miss Ferguson fits so well. It was adapted from the late Mrs. Humphery Ward's novel of the same name.

Three different periods are occupied by the picture—1860, 1890, and the modern times—and Miss Ferguson's performance is much more than a nice differentiation in costuming. She portrays a grandmother, daughter, and finally granddaughter and to each role she imparts a rare sympathy and understanding.

In the main story, Miss Ferguson is Julie Le Breton, companion to her distant relative, Lady Henry Delafield. She fancies herself in love with Captain Warkworth, an army officer. Because Julie will not abandon Warkworth, Lady Delafield banishes her from her home. She goes to Warkworth's apartment and while there learns of an affair which he is carrying on with another woman. She attempts to destroy herself and is taken to a hospital, where she encounters Jacob Delafield, her guardian's nephew, who has long wanted to marry her, and they are made happy.

David Powell and Holmes E. Herbert are included in the cast that supports Miss Ferguson. Hugh Ford was the director, and the picture is a recent Paramount release.

"Out For the Night," a Christie comedy, is one of the best comedies seen here in many a day. It is not of the slap-stick variety and still has more than the usual amount of laughs. The featured players are Eddie Barry, Neal Burns and Charlotte Merriam.

MAJESTIC

"If contemplating marriage, look before you leap." That is the little moral whereby hangs the dramatic tale unfolded in "A Lady in Love," the photoplay in which Ethel Clayton will appear at the Majestic theater starting today.

Not that Miss Clayton, as the charming heroine, advocates a life of single bliss. But she indiscreetly marries a man about whom she knows little or nothing and later discovers that he not only has a wife and child living, but also that he is a crook wanted by the law. How she is finally rescued amid dramatic circumstances from her predicament through her love for an upright young man and wins happiness forms the plot of this unusually interesting film play.

Miss Clayton is supported in "A Lady in Love" by Harrison Ford and an excellent cast. Walter Edwards was the director, and it is a Paramount-Artcraft picture.

RIVIERA

"Youth and ambition are the elements that make "Bab's Candidate," a Vitagraph production, starring Corinne Griffith, which will be shown at the Riviera theater today, is more than usually interesting photoplay. Sena-tor Marvin, a dominating character in Washington, loves his fascinating daughter but objects to her choice of a sweetheart. David Darrow, her lover, also has political aspirations but unfortunately the senator thinks his ambition a presumptuous one. He brusquely tells the young fellow that "one statesman in the family is enough," and immediately precipitates a riot. Bab takes a hand in politics and in a woman's way solves the problem, but not before humor and heartache have run a nip and tuck race.

CASINO

Again Nazimova has come to the screen and carried her audience fairly out of itself by the sheer power of her emotional depths and the finish of her performance. Last evening at the Casino theater, this great Russian star justified once more her right to be acclaimed the world's greatest actress when she appeared in her most recent production, "The Heart of a Child," a photoplay adapted by Charles Bryant from the novel by Frank Danby.

To see it is to live through the struggle Sally Snape made against the world's attack, at once so alluring and so sinister, with only the armor of her inborn sense of right to guard her.

The photoplay, by Rudolph Bergquist, is exceptionally artistic, as are the special effects by Allen Ruoff. Ray C. Smallwood has displayed unusual abilities in the direction, and those who remember Frank Danby's greatest book in its fiction form will be thankful to Charles Bryant for his intelligent and able adaptation to the screen of the best of it.

BIJOU

As good as a wild west show were the impromptu stunts performed by Will Rogers and other cowboys who went to Victorville, Calif., to make some scenes in Rogers' new Goldwyn picture, "Cupid, the Cowpuncher," which comes to the Bijou theater for two days, commencing today. "Big Boy" Williams, a cowboy from Texas, gave an exhibition of "bull dodging" steers learned while he was roaming the Texas plains. A wrestling match was staged between "Big Boy" and Rogers, bets being made that Rogers could throw the younger cowboy into the creek. Rogers won.

To Keep Hair Wavy, Lustrous, Beautiful

The use of the hot curling-iron cannot be too strongly condemned. It means death to the hair eventually. Moreover it is entirely unnecessary. The hair can be kept beautifully wavy and curly to any extent and in any form desired, by using the simple and harmless slimerine method. Liquid slimerine should be applied to the hair before doing it up, using a clean tooth brush. In about three hours you will find that a very pretty "natural" wave and curliness has resulted, and the effect will last quite a considerable time.

Liquid slimerine is really beneficial and is not sticky nor greasy. Neither does it streak the hair nor stain the scalp. You need get only a few ounces from your druggist. The best way is to divide the front and back hair into four to six strands and to moisten each strand separately from root to tip.

CHICAGO POLICE ARREST 800 IN CRIME CLEAN-UP

Suspects Pass in Review Before Victims of Hold-ups and Robberies

CHICAGO, Ill.—Four hundred of the nearly 800 suspects arrested in Saturday and Sunday night's raids on gambling houses and saloons Monday were hosts at a police station to victims of recent robberies and hold-ups who reviewed them for possible identification.

The four hundred to "pass in review" were culled from the large number of arrests as men wanted by the police for participation in recent crimes. The rest of the men arrested are being held, it was said, until they have proven their innocence.

The raids of Saturday and Sunday nights were a part of the general "clean up" which newly appointed Chief of Police Fitzmorris announced he would make.

CHICAGOAN KILLS ONE AND WOUNDS ANOTHER IN FIT OF JEALOUSY

CHICAGO, Ill.—John Hunt was arrested Monday morning at his home as he sat calmly smoking a cigarette and twirling a revolver from which four bullets had been fired. He was charged with having shot one man to death and wounded another, because he was jealous of Mrs. Florence Thompson, a divorcee.

Hunt, police said witnesses had told them, went first to a cabaret where he saw a man named Walter Mayer talking to a girl who proved not to be Mrs. Thompson, but the resemblance was close enough for Hunt to fire three shots at Mayer. He fled and went to another cabaret, where Mrs. Thompson was seen as Earl Smith, a baker, was asking her for a dance. Hunt, witnesses said, fired at Smith, killing him and escaped. Mayer's condition is serious.

My Adventures in the Midnight Frolic!

THE DRESSING ROOM

By Edith May

The preliminaries were over. I had been rehearsed a few times by the stage director, a little, wiry man who seemed about to fly apart with nervousness, but quite kind. And the night had arrived when I was to "go on" for the first time—make my actual appearance up that lighted stage with the audience out front!

Friend Lady had told us to take a cab from the hotel.

We arrived in a few minutes.

"Tickets, please, ladies!" shouted a man at the wicket.

We stared in amazement.

"We—we belong—"

Before we could explain, an elderly man rushed at us. I recognized the stage manager. He loked angry.

"What the—what are you girls doing here?" he shouted. "Don't you know enough to go in at the stage door? Well, I'll be—"

He struggled for words, while Edna cut in with some sort of apology and I had all I could do to keep from bursting out crying.

"Go round to the 41st-st door!" The manager interrupted. Then he suddenly laughted and kept on laughing till we were out of sight.

I suppose it was funny, our not knowing enough to go to the stage entrance.

Got in at Last

Well, we got in at last, found the nervous little man and were directed to a dressing room.

"Mr. Ziegfeld has told me to put you in with the nicest girls," he said, leading the way through a maze of stacked scenery, pulleys, furniture and lights with men fussing round them.

He opened a door, motioned us to go in and called out,

"Girls, here's Miss May! She's going on in the bells scene tonight. Look after her."

He hurried off, leaving Edna and me feeling like two castaways on a desert island.

It was a big room, very hot and light, with long mirrors and dressing tables against either wall and down the middle. A dozen girls or so, almost entirely undressed, were making up at the mirrors or standing about chattering. They all stared at us. I wished the floor could have swallowed me.

Edna and I slipped into a vacant place and began struggling with the make-up box I had bought that afternoon.

Nearly every girl was smoking. Boxes of chocolates were passed around and the chattering made me deaf. No one talked to us; but everyone talked at us.

Girls Start Jeers

The more freely the others forgot their clothes and their manners the tighter I drew my kimono around me, putting on the long silk stockings and yellow slippers and the wisp of a dress the wardrobe woman handed me, as best I could, looking neither to right nor left.

Edna went out to ask about something and the minute she was gone, the girls closed in upon me with jeering laughter and all sorts of remarks—

"What's the great idea?"

"Who's friend are you?"

"When did you get in from Podunk?"

"Are you doing this on a bet?"

"Someone must-a left the door open—"

Edith May as she appeared in the Midnight Frolic. Background, the New York skyline.

I determined not to cry if it killed me. But when Edna returned I was almost in a fit of nervous hysterics.

I don't know how I ever went through the "bells scene."

I never raised my eyes from the floor except to watch the back of the girl's neck in front of me as we went through the steps.

Wanted to Go Home

When the show was over I got into my own clothes, rushed from the place dragging Edna with me, into a cab and to the hotel, where I cried myself to sleep.

So this was "the life" so many girls envied!

I wanted to go home to Monroe.

BRIDGE ROAD PLAN IS GIVEN SETBACK BY BUFFALO COUNTY

The proposition of having Buffalo county take charge of the highway leading through the Wisconsin bottoms to the high wagon bridge across the river at Winona has received a temporary setback in the action just taken by the county board of Buffalo county in declining to enter into such a proposition at the present time.

According to the decision reached at a largely attended meeting held in Winona about two months ago, under the auspices of the Winona Association of Commerce, it was proposed in substance that the sum of $10,000 be raised in Winona toward the improvement of this piece of road provided the county of Buffalo and state of Wisconsin would undertake to make the necessary improvements now and maintain the road hereafter.

This arrangement recognized Winona's moral responsibility to do its share in the improvement of this piece of road. In addition to raising this money Winona was to agree to make the travel over the high wagon bridge free, providing such an agreement was reached.

While the Buffalo county board has turned the proposition down at the start, it is thought that further developments may be likely.

While one of the reasons advanced for declining to undertake this road work by the Buffalo county board is that heavy responsibility and possible liability would be assumed by whoever may assume its maintenance, the legal department of the state of Wisconsin is holding, it is said, that according to law neither Minnesota nor a Minnesota municipality can be held responsible for liability in maintaining a Wisconsin road, and that the road in question leading to the high wagon bridge to Winona is not a private road, but has by virtue of long usage become a recognized Wisconsin state highway.

In spite of the action of the county board of Buffalo county just taken it is considered likely that further developments may lead to the acceptance of the proposition by which Winona agrees to provide some $10,000 of the $50,000 or more which it is estimated the improvement of the Wisconsin approach to the high wagon bridge would cost, and also to make the bridge travel free of any tolls.

ALL EUROPE WANTS TO COME TO U. S. SAYS OLE HANSON

NEW YORK.—Testimony to the effect that "everybody from everywhere in Europe," is trying to emigrate to the United States to escape conditions of congestion and discomfort will be presented by Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, to the house immigration committee, it was announced Monday by Representative Albert Johnson, the committee chairman.

Mr. Johnson explained he had asked Mr. Hanson to lay before congress details of conditions abroad.

Mr. Hanson returned Saturday from a visit to Holland, France, Belgium, Sweden and other countries. He has been quoted as advocating total suspension of European immigration for a period of two years.

CALL FOR HELP IS GREATER THAN THE DEMAND FOR JOBS

Excess of Supply Over Demand Laid to Calls for Woods Laborers

A report of the Industrial Commission upon work of the eleven Free Employment Offices which it conducts in this state, covering the month of October, shows that during this month the number of male applicants was 96 percent of the demand for male help, and the supply of women applicants 75 percent of the demand.

There was, however, during this month in excess of supply over demand in many classes of labor, including all clerical and all semi-skilled lines as well as many skilled occupations. At a considerable number of the offices there was also an excess of the supply of common labor.

That during the month more help was wanted than there were applications for work was due wholly to the great demand for woods laborers. Recent reports received, however, indicate that this demand has now been met and that a considerable number of men who are seeking employment in the woods work of the northern part of the state are unable to find the same. The lumber companies are hiring only experienced woodsmen, and men without woods experience should keep away from the lumber towns.

The reports of the employment offices also show that for the first time in years the supply of women for domestic service is practically equal to the demand. Women workers who have lost jobs in factories are seeking employment in domestic service. In some offices there is an actual excess of applicants for domestic service over calls for help. During the month of October there was a surplus of male applicants over calls for help in Green Bay, La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine and Wausau. In the same month there was a surplus of female applicants over calls for help in Green Bay, Oshkosh, Racine and Sheboygan.

HOUSE COMMITTEE BEGINS WORK ON FINANCE MEASURE

WASHINGTON.—Work on two of the regular 1922 appropriation bills, the sundry civil and the legislative, executive and judicial measures, was begun Monday by the house appropriations committee, coincident with the return here of Representative Good of Iowa, chairman.

Every effort to economize in government expenditures will be made, Representative Good said, adding that new legislation to curtail the present spending power of some government departments might be considered.

"The war department is heading for a deficit of from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 at its present rate of expenditure," said Chairman Good, "and has not reduced the size of the standing army as required under the last army bill. Instead the army is spending thousands of dollars in advertising for more men."

Ministers responsible for the administration in Ireland were to meet Monday to discuss the situation. plan of dealing with the situation.

M. Viviani proposed that a committee select one power which would accept the responsibility of taking up negotiations. He carried almost the entire assembly with him in his eloquent demand for immediate action.

Mr. Balfour wanted further light on the proposed negotiations. He asked what the French delegation proposed to offer Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the nationalist leader, as it was quite necessary, the British delegate, said, to offer the nationalist leader either money or territory. He thought it would be very difficult to organize an expedition of 60,000 or 80,000 men.

"Failure to take practical action here on this question," responded M. Viviani, "will be to demonstrate the default of the league of nations."

"Call it negotiations or mediation," M. Viviani cried., "unless we make this minimum of effort we have only to register our failure and continue our academic discussions while the Armenians perish."

The whole assembly was on its feet, with the exception of the British delegation, cheering M. Viviani long after he had regained his seat.

WESTERN UNION ASKS INJUNCTION AGAINST THE U. S.

Seeks to Restrain Government from Interfering With Laying of Cable

WASHINGTON.—The Western Union Telegraph company applied to the district of Columbia supreme court today for an injunction to restrain Secretary of the Navy Daniels from interfering with the construction of a telegraph cable between Miami and Miami Beach, Fla.

The Western Union company also asked the court to require the naval secretary to instruct subordinate officials and naval officers to cease threatening to destroy the cable if laid. The company in its petition pointed out that the requested injunction would cover a different cable line than the Barbadoes cable, the laying of which was prevented several months ago by the sending of a warship to Miami.

Won't Use W. U. Wires

Because of the requirement of the Western Union Telegraph company that state department cable messages be prepaid, the department has ceased temporarily to use the cables of the Western Union company.

Other government departments are turning to other cable lines for messages coming from abroad because the Western Union has refused to longer grant the half rate on government messages.

ASK LEGISLATION FOR THE RELIEF OF U. S. FARMERS

WASHINGTON. — The national board of farm organizations met here Monday to consider legislation which may be asked of congress to relieve the situation facing farmers as a result of the falling prices for their products. Revival of the war finance corporation was one of the matters up for discussion.

It was said at the board's headquarters that a conference of all agricultural organizations may be called to meet in Washington soon after congress convened. A committee for such a conference, it was said, might be named to participate in a conference of western farmers which is to be held after the return of Senator Gronna of North Dakota, chairman of the senate agricultural committee.

MECHANICS TRAINED IN U. S. TANK CORPS IN GREAT DEMAND

WASHINGTON.—The army tank corps has suffered from many resignations and few re-enlistments because soldiers trained in this arm of the service find it easy to obtain lucrative employment in civil life, says the annual report of Brig. Gen. S. D. Rockenbach, chief of the corps, made public Monday.

The corps returned from France in July 1919, with a greatly depleted personnel but in the past fiscal year a net gain of 20 officers and 1,546 enlisted men was made, the report says, leaving considerable shortage still to be made up.

Although the corps possessed more than 800 tanks when it left France all were in poor repair and none ready for battle, General Rockenbach states. Considerable progress has since been made in repairing damaged material and in designing and manufacturing new machines, the report added.

Repair Kaiser's Villa

CORFU. — Achilleion Villa, the property of former Emperor William of Germany, is being repainted and put in order as if to receive a guest. The neighborhood has been cleaned up and the avenue leading to the villa from the main road, which during the regime of Premier Venizelos was known as "Liberty avenue," now bears its original title, "Avenue William II." It is rumored that one of the first efforts of Queen Sophia upon returning to Athens will be to secure consent from the allies for a visit of the former emperor to Corfu.

MEXICO DISCLAIMS PESQUIERA'S ACT IN BARRING FALL

Action Taken Without Authority Mexican Foreign Office Announces

MEXICO CITY.—Roberto V. Pesqueira, Mexican confidential agent in the United States, acted without authority in ordering Mexican consular agents on the international frontier not to vise the passports of United States Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, who proposed to visit Mexico City and attend the inauguration of Gen. Alvaro Obregon as president on December 1.

This statement was made to the newspaper El Universal Sunday by Dr. Culberto Hidalgo, under-secretary of foreign affairs, who pointed out that Pesqueira's attitude in no way reflected the sentiments of the Mexican foreign office.

SALVATION ARMY MATERNITY HOME CAMPAIGN STARTS

La Crosse Sends Second Largest Number of Cases to an Institution

That La Crosse was the second city in the state outside of Milwaukee in the number of cases sent to a maternity home last year, was the rather startling fact brought out today in connection with the Salvation Army campaign to raise a fund here for the establishment of a maternity home in this state.

A man may be down but he is never out.

The attitude and spirit of this statement will be especially extended to women in the establishment of the Salvation Army's Wisconsin State Rescue Home and Maternity hospital.

Belief in the statement's generosity is at the source of the determination to make a canvass of the state for a fund of $125,000, which is needed to provide a modern institution. This item is the big, appealing item in the 1920 home service program budget which the state advisory board of prominent citizens in charge of the campaign, and to be in charge of the expenditures, has inspected and indorsed.

For various reasons the canvass for subscriptions could not be carried on simultaneously in all counties with the result that the work is still under way in some and is set for future dates in others. It will be continued until the entire amount wanted to meet all items in the budget is raised. The budget is as follows:

State rescue and maternity work for Wisconsin, $6,000.

Divisional headquarters — strictly a Wisconsin item covering expenses of administration, $8,700.

Territorial headquarters—administration, training of officers for Wisconsin social work, women's work, young people's and children's work, bureaus and institutions, $15,000.

Pension fund, for aged and disabled Salvation Army officers, $8,000.

For State Rescue Home and Maternity hospital, Wisconsin, $125,000.

Corps budgets, 17 corps in Wisconsin, salaries of two officers, rent, light, heat of quarters and local rescue work, $38,300.

State extension, development and relief, $26,000.

WAR VETERANS AND LAWYERS AT FUNERAL FOR CLARK L. HOOD

Funeral services for Clark L. Hood, one of the city's most noted lawyers, was held yesterday afternoon at the Dwyer undertaking rooms. Interment was in Oak Grove cemetery. The services were conducted by the Rev. C. C. Rowlison. Beautiful floral offerings, including huge sprays of chrysanthemums were sent by old friends among the lawyers and Civil war veterans. Despite the erroneous announcement that the funeral was to be private, many attorneys and old soldiers attended the services. Friends of the family today expressed regret that many who knew Mr. Hood refrained from attending the funeral because they believed it to be private.

Gathering Cocoanuts

Mature cocoanuts fall from the trees; but planters cannot always wait for them to fall, and there is no pole or ladder to reach one hundred feet; climbing is the only way, and cocoa-tree climbing is a trade in cocoanut countries. Professional tree-climbers have the speed and agility of monkeys. To facilitate the operation, they place a strong loop of coir rope around the feet, near the ankles; this enables them to grip the tree securely and ascend the highest trees with amazing alacrity. The climbers are also tree-tappers, that is, tapping the cocoanut bud for the sap from which arrack is made.—Merrill Herald.

VICTORY MEDALS FOR EVERY MAN NOW AVAILABLE

Special Field Clerk in La Crosse to Speed Up Applications for Medals

The United States government is making especial efforts to place a victory medal in the hands of every enlisted man and officer of the United States who served in the World War between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918. Field Clerk A. T. Garner is at the present time in La Cresse speeding up the work of applications of men who served in the World war and is co-operating fully with the local army recruiting office and the American Red Cross.

The state of Wisconsin had over a hundred thousand men who served in the World war and each and every one of them is entitled to a victory medal. Up to the present time only 11,000 applications have been received and 11,000 medals distributed.

The American Red Cross, the American Legion and any navy or army recruiting station will handle your application and file it for you. Captain Schultz of the American Legion has received many applications. The time required to obtain your medal is about one week and in filling out the application be sure and mention all the engagements you were in overseas. Men who did not serve overseas are entitled to the victory medal. There has been some misunderstanding about this and it is the intention of the government to remove all this doubt. If you served in the army, marine corps or the navy between April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918, you are entitled to a victory medal, whether you served overseas or not.

Families of soldiers who died in the camps in the United States and the families of soldiers killed in action in France are entitled to receive the medal that would have otherwise gone to the soldier. The next of kin of the deceased soldier is asked to make the application.

FUNERALS HELD FOR THREE WOMEN IN SPARTA IN A WEEK

Harriet Kotchell, Mrs. Frederick Zimmerman and Mrs. Ida Clemens are Buried

SPARTA, Wis.—Among the deaths occurring in the city the past week, was that of Miss Harriet Kotchell, who passed away in St. Mary's hospital, Wednesday evening, death resulting from pneumonia following an operation for goitre. The remains were removed to the Lawson home on West Oak street. Funeral services were held in the Methodist church, Saturday morning, conducted by Rev. E. E. Horth. Members of the Ladies' Aid society, of which she had long been a member, and the Eastern Star attended in a body.

Miss Kotchell was born in Melrose in 1860, and with the exception of a few years, when she lived in Mason City, Iowa, her home has been in Sparta. Since the opening of the Morrow Memorial Home for the Aged she has been connected with that institution, ably managing the affairs of those entrusted to her care. Her brother, Nathan Kotchell, and wife, and Mrs. Susie Stebbens of Mason City, Iowa, and L. L. Caldwell of Decorah, Iowa, attended the funeral.

Mrs. Frederick Zimmerman, nee Homuth, died November 15, after being in failing health for a long time. She was born September 5, 1857, in Mecklenburg, Germany. She came to this country with her parents when she was sixteen years of age, and lived in Sand Creek or vicinity for several years. In 1880, she married Fred Zimmerman, and they lived on the old farm in Sand Creek until nine years ago, when they moved to Sparta. She is survived by her husband and two brothers, Ernest Homuth of Sparta and the Rev. Frederick Homuth of California. Funeral services were held from the Zion Evangelical church, of which she had been a member for over forty-five years. Interment was in Mount Hope cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Ida Radtke Clemens, a former resident of Sparta, was brought here Thursday morning from Kalamazoo, Mich. Funeral services were held from the Lanham undertaking parlors at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. E. E. Horth. Burial was in Mount Hope cemetery.

AMERICAN LEGION PLANS EXTENSIVE ATHLETIC EVENTS

Wisconsin Department Has Tentative Plans for Conducting Sports

URGE APPOINTMENT OF POST ATHLETIC DIRECTORS

Entries Must be in Before January 15

The American Legion of the department of Wisconsin will conduct during the year 1920-21 a series of athletic competitions on as extensive and elaborate a scale as the several posts desire. Tentative plans have been made to hold fifteen basketball tournaments, to organize a baseball league, and to conduct handball contests, boxing and wrestling bouts, and a military track meet. Posts interested in conducting any of these events should write at once.

An attempt will be made to administer contests in any and all forms of athletics desired by any post. If a certain activity is requested endeavors will be made to find opponents, failing which the entry will be considered champion until duly disposed via the regulation route.

Entries for the championship of 1920-21 must be in before January 15, 1921. The only eligibility requirement is that a contestant be a bonafide member in good standing of the post he represents for a period of three months prior to competition. A statement from the post commander to that effect is all that is needed.

The same weights will be in force in wrestling as in boxing. Champions will be determined in the usual classes. Eliminations will be arranged by the state office. Boxing bouts will be four two minute rounds; wrestling, best 2 out of 3 falls.

It is urged that athletic officers be appointed by each post to see that the best men of his organization represent it and to see that requests for certain events are duly made and the proper entries accepted in time. It is emphasized that this must be done before the time entries close because final plans must be completed and cannot be changed for tardy contestants.

HOPPE RUNS 300 POINTS IN FIRST INNING OF MATCH

Plays Open Style of Billiards Against Charley Peterson

NEW YORK.—Playing at the Masonic club in Hoboken last night, Willie Hoppe, world's professional balk line champion, ran out a 300 point match in one inning. Hoppe was scheduled to play against Charley Peterson at 18-2 balk line. The champion won the game and ran the 300 points without giving Peterson a single shot. Hoppe played more open table billiards while making the run that he has shown at any time this season. He seldom kept the balls together for more than fifteen or twenty points at a time.

VISCOUNT GREY BECOMING BLIND

Can See to Walk But Sight is Permanently Impaired

LONDON.—Viscount Grey's eyesight is so impaired that he is "unable to see birds and flowers," according to a letter which he has written to the Berwickshire Naturalists club declining an invitation to participate in one or two field meetings.

He says that although he could see sufficiently well to walk, he was unable to see birds or flowers or even a view and would, therefore, be unable to share the interests of the excursion.

As Sir Edward Grey, the Viscount was British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs at the beginning of the world war and conducted the negotiations with the German government concerning the possibilities of ending hostilities. He was for a short time British Ambassador in Washington in the latter part of last year. His eyesight has long been failing.

FOLWELL POLISHES NAVY GRID TEAM FOR ARMY BATTLE

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—The final campaign to put the Naval academy team at the top of its ability for the game against the Military academy eleven next Saturday will begin tomorrow under Bob Folwell and his assistants.

The members of the squad are in fine physical condition. The Navy contingent is keenly alive to its chance to make the series a tie. However, it is not likely to even up the total points, as the Army has piled up 236 during the series and the Navy has made only 152.

Athletic representatives of the two academies have agreed upon the following officials for the big game:

Referee—Dr. Al Sharpe, Yale. Umpire—Fred Murphy, Brown. Field judge—J. A. Evans, Williams. Head linesman—Carl Marshall, Harvard.

CHICAGO MEN HOLD LEADS IN DOUBLES IN BOWLING EVENT

St. Paul Contestant Holds Front in the Singles Tournament

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Aspirants for honors in the thirteenth annual tournament of the Middle West Bowling association today were shooting for leads held by Chicago crews in the doubles and five-men events and a St. Paul contestant in the singles.

The card of 2,795 turned in by the champion Brucks of Chicago Saturday night, stood up through yesterday in the face of assaults by six five-men clubs.

Play in the singles and doubles did not start until yesterday and F. Matek of St. Paul went out in front with 636 in the former, while H. Larsen and J. Wagner of Chicago topped the other pairs with 1,182.

Keep Life's Windows Open

Life is constantly confronted with new ideas. They must be examined before being accepted. In this as in everything else there must be the right light in which to make the examination. The bright light that makes the diamond flash destroys the sensitized mate. Each must have the light it needs to meet the thing it was made for. So each challenging thought must have its setting and life's windows are the media through which we see them. He who knows how to use his windows can have just the kind of light he needs within. He who closes his windows to the light is sure to settle farther and farther into himself and sour in his own stagnation. To live sweet and fresh lives men must must see. It's a matter of opening the windows.—Exchange.

ZUPPKE PLANS 1921 ELEVEN TO BEAT OHIO STATE CREW

Fletcher and Carney Sustain Injuries in Final Game Saturday

URBANA, Ill.—Illinois, coming out of the daze occasioned by the loss of the championship to Ohio yesterday in the last second, began to bind up its wounds and talk about next year.

Charles Carney, Illini end, sustained a dislocated knee, it was discovered. Carney was obliged to leave the game in the first half. Whether he will be able to play basketball is considered doubtful. Ralph Fletcher's hand was broken, otherwise the Illini came out all right.

Letters to the Illini will be awarded this week on recommendation of Coach Zuppke. That Hank Reitsch, who played center for the disabled captain, John Depler, Hughes, the scrappy little guard, Linden and Deepel, ends, who played Saturday, will all receive consideration is likely.

Zuppke for 1921 will probably adhere to the same schedule as this season, but he is certain to demand that Ohio, if Ohio again is his final foe, play on the Saturday preceding the engagement unless he also takes a rest.

SHANER'S ELECTION PLEASES SHOOTERS

Man Who Managed Trapshooting for 26 Years Comes Back as President

BY PETER P. CARNEY
(Editor National Sports Syndicate)

The election of Elmer E. Shaner, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to the presidency of the American Trapshooting Association meets with the hearty approval of the trapshooters of the United States and Canada.

Shaner for 28 years was manager of the American Trapshooting Association and in his late years was also secretary. It was Shaner who put the "trap" in trapshooting, and it was through his everlasting stick-to-itiveness that trapshooting is where it is today.

Shaner is beloved by thousands of the trapshooters who participate in the tournaments of the United States and Canada. The new president during his long term as manager made some enemies, too, but any person who does anything will make enemies. The only ones who do not have enemies or who do not get knocked are those who never do anything. The rules of the old Interstate Trapshooting Association were law to Shaner and every shooter had to do what the rules stipulated. Those who did not observe them suffered, and they are the people who worked up a dislike for the man who put trapshooting on its feet. And it is these trapshooters who have realized their mistake since Shaner dropped out.

What the Trapshooting organization should have done when Shaner resigned as manager was to have elected him to the presidency. He could have continued in the sport then with a full knowledge of what was going on. His return to office will have a beneficial bearing on trapshooting, even though he will not be as active as in the old days. No one in the country can handle an important shooting tournament with the ease that Shaner can. Others can, and do, run shoots, but when Shaner is on hand the machinery is well greased.

Thomas A. Marshall will act as vice-president of the Association, T. S. Davis, treasurer and Stony McLinn, secretary-manager. The executive committee of the American Trapshooting Association is made up of F. G. Drew, chairman; E. R. Galvin, J. Leonard Clark, T. H. Keller, and C. W. Hymer. The five representatives of the amateurs are S. S. Foster, Mason City, Ia., chairman; Jay Clark, Worcester, Mass.; M. D. Hart, Richmond, Va.; F. D. Stoop, Kalispell, Mont.; Dan Bray, Columbus, Nebr.

OSHKOSH DEFEATS RIVER FALLS BY SCORE OF 7 TO 0

Are State Champions Providing Stevens Point Drops Out

Oshkosh Normal school defeated the River Falls football team last Saturdy at River Falls by a score of 7 to 0. The two teams battled to a scoreless tie until the last few minutes of play. A forward pass, Kolf to Webster, followed by a thirty yard run, resulted in the winning score. River Falls tried hard to come back and succeeded in executing a long forward pass in the last minute of play but lacked the necessary punch to put it over the final mark. The winners may yet have to meet the undefeated Stevens Point aggregation for the title of the state. If no other games are played, Oshkosh becomes the undisputed title holder for the normal schools.

NEW RAILROAD MAPS OF WISCONSIN TO BE PUBLISHED IN MARCH

Size of Edition to be Limited Because of Increased Cost of Publication

ISSUE AUTHORIZED BY LEGISLATURE IN 1919

Maps to be Most Complete Ever Published

MADISON, Wis.—The new Wisconsin railroad maps will not be published before early next March. Owing to the extra cost of issuing the maps the edition will be limited and it is not likely that members of the legislature will be given consignments of maps as heretofore has been the custom. The schools and libraries of the state will receive these maps as usual.

By act of the legislature of 1919 the railroad commission was directed to publish a lithographic stone or metal plate to be the property of the state from which successive editions of maps will be printed biennially. The commission experienced some trouble in being able to purchase the lithographic stone and finally the engineering department at the capitol was engaged in the work of preparing the drawing for the most complete official map that has as yet been issued by the state.

"In comparing former maps with the state and United States geological surveys and with the land office maps many inaccuracies were found," said C. D. SeCheverall of the Railroad Commission." The endeavor was therefore made to eliminate all errors and make the map as nearly perfect as possible. In making the drawings for the new map we had at our disposal the records of all state and federal surveys both topographic and geological. The land office records and county maps and atlases were freely consulted. Draftsmen skilled in map work and competent to undertake work of this importance were difficult to secure and the work was delayed considerably. For this reason it was late in April before the copy was ready to submit to the bidders. The contract was let on May 11th to the Topographic Engraving Company of Washington D. C. and delivery was promised in six and one-half months. It appeared desirable at this time in order to expedite matters that the state should purchase the paper to be used as it required a cloth backed paper and would have to be made up after the order was placed. We accordingly asked the State Printing Board to secure prices and samples. After comparing the quality and price and enlisting the opinion of a large map publisher, a coated paper manufactured at Nashua, New Hampshire, was decided upon. This paper costs 42 cents per map. In order to determine the number of sheets to order an estimate was made of the various expenses entering into the cost of the map and it was found that the appropriation of $15,000 would permit the purchasing of only 11,000 maps."

The principal demand for the maps at the present time comes from the members of the legislature for the 100 maps to which each member is entitled. Even though the new map was completed and a stock on hand at the present time, the members of the legislature would not receive their allotment as there is no appropriation available to provide their maps. The legislature requirements are 13,200 maps. There was appropriated for the purchase of the plates and publishing of the map $15,000 which will procure but 11,000 maps. These must be distributed as provided by Subsection 15 of Section 35.84 of the statutes. The provision under which the legislature is entitled to 100 maps each is contained in Subsection 13a of Section 35.84 and provides for 100 maps of the Highway wall map, the Highway folded map and the Railroad map. To provide these maps there was appropriated $25,000 to the Highway Commission. The Highway maps have been furnished at a cost in excess of $23,000, leaving less than $2,000 available for the furnishing of 13,300 maps, the paper alone for which will cost more than $5,000.

A country squire, riding in an unfrequented part of Kirkendbrightshire, came to the edge of a morass.

Observing a peasant lad in the vicinity, he hailed him and inquired whether the bog was hard at the bottom. "Oh aye, quite hard," responded the youth.

The squire passed on, but his horse began to sink with alarming rapidity.

"You rascal!" he shouted to his misinformant. "Did you not say that it was hard at the bottom?"

"So it is," rejoined the rogue, "but ye're not half way to it yet."—Los Angeles Times.

Eight-year-old Raymond came from a small village to visit in Indianapolis the other day. In the village there were no water works and Raymond watered the flowers with a sprinkling can. Neither did they have a bathroom at home. And he eyed it and the shower it contained with wonder.

Finally he made his comments to his uncle, who was very tall.

"No wonder you all grow so big here in Indianapolis," he said. "Why, you have that big sprinkling can in the bathroom so that you can water yourselves all the time."—Telegraph Herald.

TEETHING

At birth, each tiny tooth lies partly embedded in a cavity in the jaw bone, surrounded with, and covered by the soft tissues of the gum. As baby grows, the teeth grow also and, if baby is healthy, they are ready to cut through the gums at the sixth or seventh month.

Following is the normal time of teething:

Lower Jaw

1. Middle cutting tooth, 6 to 9 months.
2. Next cutting teeth, 12 to 15 months.
3. Canine or "stomach," 18 to 24 months.
4. First molar (grinder), 12 to 15 months.
5. Second molar (grinder), 24 to 30 months.

Upper Jaw

1. Middle cutting tooth, 8 to 12 months.
2. Next cutting tooth, 8 to 12 months.
3. Canine or "eye," 18 to 24 months.
4. First molar (grinder), 15 months.
5. Second molar (grinder), 24 to 30 months.

There are 20 of these first or milk teeth, 10 in each jaw. As a help in remembering the baby teeth, recall that there are as many teeth in the upper jaw as there are fingers on two hands; and that a baby has as many teeth on the lower jaw as he has toes.

The teeth appear in groups. The first to appear are the lower incisors or front teeth. Then the upper incisors appear. After that the canine teeth, then the first and then the second molars may be found.

The time of cutting teeth varies so in different children that it is difficult to lay down rules for their appearance. However, a child one year of age has, as a rule, eight teeth; at 16 months there should be 12 teeth and at two and one-half years the child should have the full 20. If the child has less than this number, there may be something lacking in the diet.

VETERANS SLOW TO ASK FOR UNCLE SAM'S VICTORY MEDALS

PHILADELPHIA.—Uncle Sam is doing his best to pin medals on his soldiers but can't find the soldiers.

Veterans are applying for the Victory Medal at the rate of 6,800 a day, which is far below the capacity of the special staff employed here by the government to make and distribute the medals. To date 379,214 medals have been awarded, or 10 per cent of the 3,757,624 number needed to give each veteran a medal.

For service in this country 317,194 medals have been issued and for foreign servile, 79,092. Of the medals with battle clasps 56,005 have been with three clasps, this being the largest number of battle clasp medals. There have been 53,510 with two clasps, 52 with nine clasps, nine with ten clasps and two with 11 clasps.

Any soldier who served during the war is entitled to a medal and will receive it within a week of applying at any army recruiting station or any American Legion post.

How We Serve Factories and Mines
Julius Andrae & Sons Co. is more than an electrical supply house—perhaps we had better say, Andrae's is a supply house, plus.
As a supply house it matches up pretty close to the ideal—it has large stocks, dependable sources of supply, adequate equipment for handling business, and an eager, loyal organization.
But behind these resources, the Andrae people have something which is too seldom found nowadays, and that is the spirit of service.
Andrae salesmen are not peddlers; they are experts in the service of their customers. They are not order-hounds, they are purchasing counsel to those who need our kind of goods. Every day some factory or mine executive calls in the Andrae representative and says, "Mr. Jones, we want to do so-and-so: what material and equipment do you advise?" And the salesman tells him what he ought to buy—not what we want to sell.
A very large percentage of Andrae orders are received without any price stipulation.
We are proud of the position we hold in the estimation of our customers. We are uncompromising in the maintainance of this position, in the belief that it is the sort of service which first-class business men desire.

Multi-plying Motor Miles

THE number of motor miles traveled by the average American has been increasing steadily for a decade. During 1921 this mileage again will be vastly increased.

It is estimated that 10 million automobiles and trucks will be in operation by the end of 1921. The estimate for 1920 is 7,523,000.

The most intensive use of all kinds of automotive machinery is in the 10 middle Western states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the major problem confronting this company is to keep its patrons supplied with all the gasoline and lubricating oils they require.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is acknowledged to be the largest individual producer of gasoline in the world, and its efficient system of distribution makes it possible for the remotest citizen in the 10 states served to get his requirements of petroleum products with a minimum of effort and expense.

Advanced methods of refining, originated in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) laboratories, have vastly increased the percentage of gasoline recoverable from crude oil.

The Company is striving to increase the yield of gasoline, and every effort is concentrated to the accomplishment of this result without sacrifice of gasoline quality. The efficiency of Red Crown Gasoline is an illustration of what has been accomplished.

The entire petroleum industry is working to multiply the motor miles which shall be available during 1921, and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is leading in this effort.

Prospectors are seeking to discover new fields to drill. Producers are insisting on maximum output from wells already drilled.

Waste of oil in transportation is practically eliminated, and the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) efficiency in refining has vastly increased the average recovery of motor fuel from the crude available.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is cooperating in every way with the automobile industry and the American motorist to multiply motor miles in 1921.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

By a certain mortgage dated November first, A. D. 1916, and duly executed and acknowledged, Louis C. Jenks and Elizabeth, his wife, conveyed to the undersigned William Johnson the certain parcels of real estate situated in the City and County of La Crosse, Wisconsin, and particularly described therein as follows, namely:

Lots Numbers Five, Six, Seven and Eight in Gillett's Subdivision of Block Twenty-six, and Lots Numbers Two, and Three in Block Thirty-five, all in the Original Plat of North La Crosse as the same is recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of La Crosse County, except a part of the said Lot Number Eight, two hundred feet in length east and west and one hundred and fifty feet in width north and south, situated in the southeast corner of the said Lot Eight;

With the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging.

Which said mortgage contained a power of sale, and was given to secure payment of the sum of six thousand one hundred and forty dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable annually, and evidenced by two certain promissory notes of even date with said mortgage, executed by said Louis C. Jenks, and payable to the order of William Johnson, the said mortgagee, one of said notes being for the sum of one thousand dollars, payable on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1917, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum and the other of said notes being for the sum of five thousand one hundred and forty dollars, payable on or before five years from its date, with interest at the rate of seven per cent, payable annually on the first day of July of each year, and in which latter note it was provided that installments upon the principal of not less than five hundred dollars should be paid upon the first day of September of each year except the year 1917.

And it was further provided in and by the said last mentioned note that in case of the non-payment of either or any of the said installments at the time they or any should become due, or in case of the failure to pay the taxes upon the mortgaged premises at the time the same should become due and payable each year, the whole amount of the principal of said note should thereupon at the option of the said payee, his representatives or assigns, be deemed to have become and be due and payable and collectible in the same manner as if the original time of payment had expired.

And which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of La Crosse County aforesaid on the second day of November, A. D. 1916, at 2:10 o'clock in the afternoon, in Volume 84 of Mortgages on page 178.

That default has been made upon both and each of said notes and the said mortgage by the non-payment of any part of either of the said notes, except interest on the $1,000.00 note to November 1, 1919, and on the $5,140.00 note to November 1, 1918, and that no other payments or installments have ever been paid upon the said indebtedness so evidenced by the said notes and secured by said mortgage.

That it was further stipulated in the said mortgage that in case of the non-payment of any sum of money, either of principal, interest or taxes, at the time or times when the same should become due, or of failure on the part of the said mortgagors to keep or perform any other condition therein contained, then the whole amount of the said principal sum should at the option of the said party of the second part, namely the said mortgagee William Johnson, or his representatives or assigns, to be exercised at the time of such default or at any time thereafter, be deemed to have become due, and that the same with interest thereon at the rate aforesaid should thereupon be collectible in a suit at law or by foreclosure of this mortgage in the same manner as if the whole of said principal sum had been made payable at the time when any such failure should occur.

That said mortgagors have failed to pay the taxes upon the said premises or any part thereof, for the years 1918 and 1919, and have allowed the said premises to be sold at tax sale for such non-payment of said taxes. And that by reason of such failure to pay such installments of principal and such interest upon said indebtedness as the same became due and payable, or at all, except the payments of interest above mentioned, the undersigned mortgagee in said mortgage named, has exercised and hereby does exercise his option and declare the whole of said indebtedness, principal and interest, so unpaid, to be due and payable in accordance with the conditions of said notes and mortgage.

And that there is now at this date due and owing to him upon the said indebtedness so evidenced and secured, the sum of six thousand one hundred and forty dollars of principal, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum upon one thousand dollars thereof from the first day of November, A. D. 1919, and with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum upon five thousand one hundred and forty dollars thereof from the first day of November, A. D. 1918, over and above all payments, credits, deductions or offsets. And that no action has been commenced at law or in equity to recover said indebtedness so due and owing, or any part thereof.

That of the said above described premises, the Lots Five, Six, Seven and the north two hundred feet of the Lot Eight in Gillett's Sub-division of Block Twenty-six of the Original Plat of North La Crosse are subject to a prior and earlier mortgage than this, of thirty-five hundred dollars principal and interest, which mortgage was duly foreclosed by an action in the Circuit Court of La Crosse County, and a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale duly entered thereupon on the 21st day of February, A. D. 1920, and which has not yet been redeemed from such sale.

Therefore public notice is hereby given that said mortgaged premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash on Wednesday, the eighth day of December, A. D. 1920, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the La Crosse County Court House situated in the City of La Crosse in said County and State.

Dated October 23rd, 1920.

WILLIAM JOHNSON, Mortgagee.

Brahmer, New York Life Insurance company agent and a machine driven by Mr. Raffelson of Bangor came together near the curb at the northwest corner of the street intersection. The Brahmer car was struck with such force, it is alleged, that it was turned around. The Raffelson car was badly damaged, the front of the machine being smashed in. Stunned

"If labor persists in its arrogance," said the town man, "the time will come when the hired man who does a full and honest day's work will be denounced as a traitor to his class."

"The hired man who does—good gosh! — what?" astoundedly yelled Farmer Bentover.—Kansas City Star.

PROGRESS MARKS TRADING

Market Assumes Steadier Tone With Advances Recorded in Many Issues

NEW YORK—Upward progress marked the first hour's trading of Monday's market, especially in industrials, shippings, oils and specialties. These were featured by Crucible, Lackawanna and Vanadium Steels, Atlantic Gulf, American International, Mexican Petroleum, Studebaker, Stromberg, Sears-Roebuck and Famous Players. Among rails, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western rose 7 points, Atlantic Coast Line 3 and Great Northern 26. Reactions of 1 to 2½ points ensued on profit-taking, but a rally in which short covering was a factor carried some of the prominent issues over their previous maximums of the morning. Call money was offered at 7 per cent and an easier tone was reported for time loans.

For the first time in almost three weeks the stock market at the opening of Monday's session was active on the constructive or buying side. Shares of almost every variety participated in the rebound, which ranged from one to five points in the first fifteen minutes. Strongest features included Bethlehem, Crucible and Republic Steels, United States Rubber, Atlantic Gulf, Mercantile Marine preferred, Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums, American Tobacco, Tobacco Products, Detail Stores, Beet Sugar, American Locomotive and General Electric. Such rails as Southern Pacific, Reading, New York Central, New Haven and Rock Island also contributed in moderate measure to the rally. Initial quotations for foreign exchange showed distinct improvement.

WHEAT FAILS TO RALLY

Market Continues Downward Course to New Low Level For Season

CHICAGO, Ill.—Wheat prices dropped Monday to the lowest level yet, although it is now 71 days since the grain market began to fall. Adverse commercial conditions remained the ruling factor. The severity of recent declines induced heavy covering by shorts at the opening, but when demand from this source had been satisfied the market showed lack of support, and a series of violent downward swings ensued. Opening prices, which varied from the same as Saturday's finish to 2½c higher, with December $1.69 to $1.70½ and March $1.60½ to $1.62, were followed by tumbles which received no important check until the market had reached $1.64½ December and $1.55 March.

Utter absence of demand except from profit-taking shorts led to semi-demoralization in the late dealings. At one time, December was off 11 cents a bushel from Saturday's close. Today's finish was extremely nervous at 2½c to 9c net decline, with December $1.60 to $1.60½ and March $1.55 to $1.56.

Corn gave way with wheat. After opening ½c to 2¾c higher, including December at 65 to 65½c, the market hardened a little more, and then suffered a decided general break.

Corn and oats developed stubborn resisting powers later. Corn closed firm at ⅛c to 2⅛c net advance with December 64⅝ to 64⅞c.

Oats reflected the weakness of other cereals, starting unchanged to 1c higher, May 48 to 48⅝c, and then descending rapidly.

Lower quotations on hogs and grain pulled down provisions.

SENTIMENT AMONG FARMERS FAVORS HOLDING OF WHEAT

Reports from Eight States Shows Tendency to Hold Back Grain

AGRICULTURISTS OPPOSE ANY SORT OF STRIKE

Need Credit Facilities if Crop is to be Withheld

CHICAGO.—While not favoring a grain "strike" for any set price, sentiment among organized farmers in the great agricultural states of the middle west runs strongly toward holding back grain as far as practicable for better prices, according to canvass made here. This survey of sentiment was taken by the Illinois Agricultural Association.

Reports were received by secretaries of the state farm bureau federations in Missouri, Minnesota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin and Kentucky. In no cases did a state federation report it had advised a "strike."

Need of credit facilities to enable farmers to hold their wheat if they want to was pointed out from several states. One state secretary wrote he was "using the present conditions as an argument in favor of the farmers getting into the big marketing game in such a way that they will be able to finance it and to store considerable of the grain as it is offered."

"The attitude I have taken in this matter is this," wrote H. D. Lutz, of Lincoln, Neb., secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, "that it is wrong to set an arbitrary price of $3 a bushel and that it is hardly advisable to ask the farmers to hold their wheat unless we are in a position to help them on the financial and storage ends of the game. But I do tell the farmers that I believe wheat will be higher and that it will be a good thing to hold it if they are in a position to do so."

Writing that the South Dakota Farm Bureau Federation "does not believe a "wheat strike" necessary or desirable for the country," Secretary P. J. Crandall of Huron said, "our method of handling the situation is to furnish farmers with accurate information regarding the wheat market to help them in determining what action is best for their needs. The farmers will hold their wheat off the market without a doubt if they are able to get credit which will allow them to carry their products. The credit situation is the key to the whole matter. We are advising that the world wheat situation warrants holding of the crop if credit allows and using our best efforts to help bring financial relief."

Officially the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation has made no recommendation. A. J. Meyer, at Columbia, executive secretary, wrote. "As individuals, he added, "all members of our executive committee take the attitude that where farmers can afford to hold wheat they should by all means do so. This is on the theory that present prices are about as low as we can reasonably expect them to go. Since we are not in a position to guarantee $3 wheat, we can hardly advise farmers to hold for $2."

The Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation does not endorse "strikes" as a means of controlling the price of farm products, wrote Secretary C. A Peters, of Rosendale, Wis. "According to the present situation in regard to wheat we believe that the low prices are unjustifiable and that it would be good business policy for the farmers to discontinue heavy marketing and allow the market to adjust itself."

From Iowa, E. H. Cunningham, of Ames, secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, wrote. "We realize that it is the most difficult thing to hold grain and do not recommend that it be held to arbitrarily force prices to unreasonable height. Of course we have no credit system whereby we can hold all the grains of the country, but we are advising our farmers to slow down in marketing for the present until this period of demoralization in prices has somewhat recovered."

ARE THEY BROTHERS?

NEW YORK.—Are these two men brothers? Should this dark, slender Latin of New York, who styles himself Don Louis de Bourbon, be on the throne of Spain instead of King Alfonso? He says his father was Alfonso XII and his mother, the king's morganatic wife, and that he was born in Galatz, Rumania, in 1884. The present Spanish ruler was born two years later. Don Louis says he was hidden away during much of his early life and then did a good deal of traveling. For the last four years he has been living here with his foster-mother, Mrs. Helen Gilchy, who died recently. He says he is not seeking the Spanish throne, for he would rather remain here with his writings.

What Delayed Auntie

Aunt Martha, in town with her daughter, who had to be operated upon, was having her first taste of urban life. To while away her time she "hired out" as a cook. The first Saturday night she was at work her employer sent her to make some purchases. She was hours returning and as the distance was short, her employer grew rather anxious about her. She came in about 11:20.

"Where on earth have you been, Aunt Martha?" was the question that greeted her.

Still showing plainly signs of mental stress, she said: "Lawdy, ma'am, I been trying to find a place to get across dat street downtown. I stood on de corner half an hour waiting for all dem street wagons to get by, you dey kept er comin.' Den I walked up dat side of de street, but all de corners wuz just alike. I couldn't get across, so I jes' waited till all dem things went home, and den I come here as fas' as I could."

Not Worth Making the Change

A widely prevailing idea that the price of books would be materially lower if they were issued in paper covers has elicited from an authority the remark that in manufacturing books only ten cents a copy would be saved by binding them in paper instead of cloth. It might make a difference of, say, 30 cents in the retail price of the book, but whether that difference is great enough to create much of a demand for the paper-covered volumes in preference to those bound in cloth is doubtful. Americans in general have not the habit, which is common in Europe, of having their books rebound to conform to their own taste.—Youth's Companion.

A Wave of Gambling

A wave of reckless gambling seems to have struck the entire country of Portugal and the government has recently been forced to adopt measures to put a stop to it. Magnificent club houses which have flourished in great numbers for more than a year have been closed by the authorities.

Why a butter maker was needed to perfect Troco

Because the process of making is essentially the same. Dainty white coconut fat, appetizing and nutritious, replaces butter fat. What makes good butter flavor makes good Troco flavor.

Thus we employ A. E. Hoffman, a famous butter and milk expert, to supervise the making of Troco. He has spent 30 years making and judging butter and teaching butter making.

Scrupulous care and human skill

Mr. Hoffman has no secret process. Scrupulous care, beginning with the selection of materials and extending through every process, is the foundation of his great success.

No mechanical process can produce sweetness and delicate flavor. This depends on human skill. Mr. Hoffman's butter was famous for the wonderful flavor which he now puts into Troco.

We built a new plant

To give Mr. Hoffman proper facilities for his exacting work we built a new plant, up-to-the-minute in equipment and sanitation. Here he can standardize production and insure the perfection of every pound.
